WHAT IS THE GRANITE CITY RALLY?

This year's Anderson Cars Granite City Rally is Round 2 in the Mintex National Rally Series (the UK's top rally championship after the Mobil 1 Top Gear championship) and Round 3 in the Scottish Rally Championship. The annual coming-together of the best of the UK drivers and the top Scottish drivers always has a tale to tell afterwards, with special forest stages like Gartly and Clashindarroch having formed the scene of many an exciting outcome in years gone by.

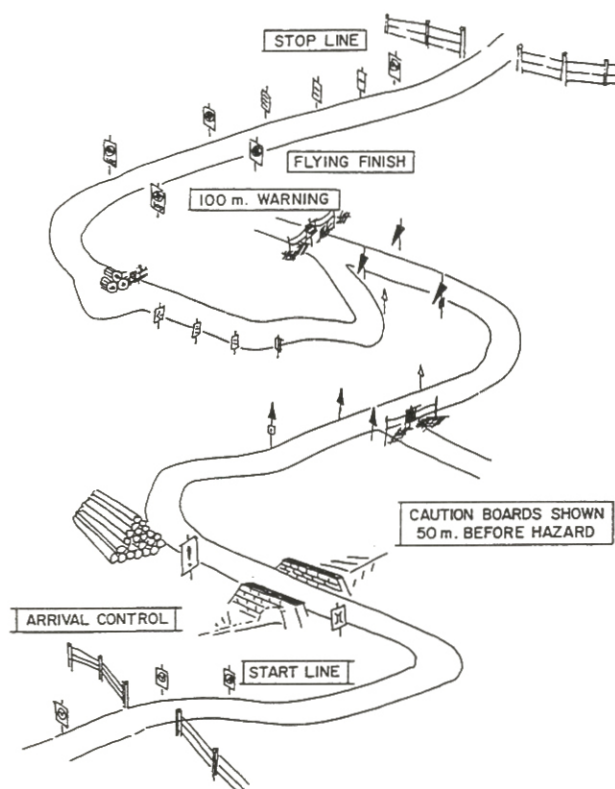

The crews will leave Aberdeen's Exhibition and Conference Centre, at one minute intervals and running ahead of the main competition is a selection of 1300cc cars, given special arrangements to go first on the fresh, smooth stage surfaces.

On arrival at the entrance to the forest (arrival control) at their specified time, crews will have special time cards signed, after which they will move up the 50 yards or so to the stage start. The navigator at this point will be checking his or her maps, ensuring the intercom is on, setting the tripmeter and stop watch, ensuring that the full harness safety belts are fully tightened and that crash helmets are securely fastened. At the same time, the start marshal will be counting down to the start at every five seconds, until, with a few seconds to go, he will count the seconds individually.

Once the crew are off, driving as quickly and skilfully as possible for the duration of the forest stage, timed to the second. Because there is no opportunity to practice these stages and make notes, the drivers are travelling 'blind', unaware of what might be round the next corner. The only factors which assist them in this will be a road book - which organisers provide - and in some cases, high-scale detailed maps, which the navigator will read to the driver in a code or style which suits them both.

At the end of the stage (the flying finish), where every second really does count, the driver will eek out every last fraction of his car's power before passing the clock and recording a time. He is given a short distance to slow down and then stops to have his time card filled in by the finish marshal.

The crew then travel by road, under normal driving conditions to the next stage, or service halt. At service the competing pair and their support crew of mechanics have a short time in which to check over the car and make any repairs or adjustments. At this point, the navigator will be keeping a close eye on the clock and letting the rest of the team know when to head off again.

Once all the special stages are completed, the crews drive by public road back to the rally headquarters. Here it will be arranged for the driver with the quickest total of stage times and least road penal ties to be first car back, where he or she will be welcomed by an applauding crowd, a commentary, and a bottle of Moet Chandon. As to who that person is likely to be it's anyone's guess!
